The screenshot shows a Flip topic page. At the top, the text "Topic Details" is displayed in purple. Below this is a video thumbnail featuring a man with glasses, identified as "Bueller?", in front of a chalkboard with economic terms like "fiscal policy" and "monetary policy". To the right of the thumbnail, the title "Advice to Future Me" is shown in bold black text, with "Created Oct 17, 2019" underneath. Below the title are two buttons: "Flip Code 57175e31" and "Add Topic Guests". At the bottom, a short description reads: "Imagine you are creating a message to your future self. What kind of professional/person do you hope to be?"

Elias Misje The fact that USA is a very happy isn't a fact. It is not necessarily the truth. And communism doesn't mean that everyone gets the same amount of money. It just means that the state is helping people who are poor and helps them to survive their difficult circumstances. Not everybody has the fortune to get a well paid job, so they need support from the state

The screenshot shows the Flipgrid web interface. At the top, there is a navigation bar with the Flipgrid logo, a user profile for Terje Pedersen, and menu items: Activity, My Grids (underlined), MixTapes, Disco Library, and #GridPals. Below the navigation is a 'My Grids' section with a sub-header and a descriptive paragraph. A statistics card shows '3 weeks and 4 days' of engagement time and an 'Engagement Fact' about 1850s mail travel. A '23 Grids' section includes a '+ New Grid' button and a search bar. Below is a table of grid details.
